Look for the Dominical Letter for the Year, and underneath it stands the Day of the Week, which all the Figures in the Table shew to be such Days of the Month under which they stand.—In short, whatever Day stands under the Dominical Letter, all the Figures in the Table will be the same Day of the Week in each Month under which they stand respectively. But it must be observed that in Leap Year there are two Dominical Letters, the first of which serves for January and February only, and the other to the Year's End.

In the present Year 1790, being the second after Leap Year, C is the Dominical Letter, under which stands Thursday, which shews that all the Dates in the Table are Thursdays for the Year 1790.

SONGS, sung at VAUXHALL, &c. 1789.

An ADIEU to the ROCKS of LANNOW.

FROM thy waves, stormy Lannow, I fly!

From the rocks that are lash'd by their tide!

From the maid, whose cold bosom, resentless as they,

Has wreck'd my warm hopes by her pride.

Yet lonely and rude, as the scene,

Her smile to that scene could impart

A charm that might rival the bloom of the vale,

But away thou fond dream of my heart!

To thy rocks, stormy Lannow, adieu!

Now the blasts of the winter come on,

And the waters grow dark as they rise!

Yet 'tis well! they resemble the sullen disdain,

That has lower'd in those insolent eyes.

Sinners were the sighs it repress'd,

But they rose in the days that are flown!

Ah! nymph, unrelenting, and cold as thou art

My spirit is proud as thy own.

To thy rocks, stormy Lannow, adieu!

Lo! the wings of the sea-fowl are spread,

To escape the rough storm by their flight,

And these caves will afford them a gloomy retreat,

From the winds and the billows of night.

I like them to the home of my youth,

Like them to its shades I retire;

Receive me, and shield my chill'd spirit, ye graves,

From the storms of insulted desire.

To thy rocks, stormy Lannow, adieu!

THYRSIS, or the FATHER of his PEOPLE.

AH! well may sorrow murmur round,

See Thyrsis ling'ring, ling'ring lie,

Each shepherd's heart bleeds with the wound,

And tears fill ev'ry eye:

He was the friend of all mankind,

The guardian of the plain;

His breath was gentler than the wind,

That fans the rip'ning grain.

• M

But

But see, his sad Aurelia stands
 With all her infant care,
 She beats her breasts, she wrings her hands,
 And tears her flowing hair !
 Then haste ye, virgins, to her aid,
 Say hope is not yet fled,
 And see the trebly welcome maid
 Hygeia, shews her head.
 On yon high hill behold her stand,
 Diffusing girdles round,
 Wan Sickness flies at her command,
 While Grief in chains is bound.
 Now all your instruments prepare,
 Aurelia's heart revive,
 Tell to the earth, the sea, the air,
 Her Thyrsis still shall live.

The KIND are YOUNG and FAIR.

TO beauty born a willing slave,
 A merry happy man,
 I flight the nymph I cannot have,
 And doat on those I can.

CHORUS.

This constant maxim still I hold,
 To baffle all despair,
 The froward ugly are and old,
 The kind are young and fair.

The women would no more perplex
 Were men resolv'd and free,
 Soft smiles become the charming sex,
 No pouting Mifs for me.

In wedlocks bands if e'er I join,
 Good-humour be my guide;
 Let dimpled smiles and love be mine,
 I laugh at female pride.

I'll Think of WILLY far Away.

MY Love, the pride of hill and plain,
 Has now set sail and gone to sea,
 Yet well I know my gentle swain,
 Will ne'er inconstant prove to me,

Where e'er I rove, where e'er I stray,
I'll think of Willy far away.

At morn and eve I'll sound his praise,
And loudly of his beauties sing;
For oh! engaging are his ways,
And sweet his presence as the spring;

Where e'er I rove, where e'er I stray,
I'll think of Willy far away.

Should he return to bless my sight,
I'll hail the lad with hearty glee;

And all his tender love requite,
With truth, with love, and constancy.

In hopes of this where e'er I stray,
I think of Willy far away.

ALONE by the LIGHT of the MOON.

THE day is departed and round from the cloud,
The moon in her beauty appears,

The voice of the nightingale warbles around
The music of love in our ears.

Maria appear! now the season so sweet,
With the beat of the heart is in tune,

The time is so tender for lover's to meet,
Alone by the light of the moon.

I cannot when present unfold what I feel,
I sigh—Can a lover do more?

Her name to the shepherds I never reveal,
Yet I think of her all the day o'er.

Maria, my love! do you long for the grove,
Do you sigh for an interview soon;

Does e'er a kind thought run on me as you rove,
Alone by the light of the moon.

Your name from the shepherds whenever I hear,
My bosom is all in a glow;

Your voice when it vibrates so sweet thro' mine ear,
My heart thrills—my eyes overflow.

Ye powers of the sky, will your bounty divine
Indulge a fond lover his boon,

Shall heart spring to heart, and Maria be mine,
Alone by the light of the moon.

I'll not be confin'd like a BIRD in a CAGE.
 'ER yet in my youth, and my beauty in prime,
 To hear a foit tale can be surely no crime;
 Tho' my mother and aunt will continually preach
 And lessons of this, that, and t'other wilt teach.
 Their advice may no doubt be both learned and sage,
 Yet I'll not be confin'd like a bird in a cage.

The goldfinch and linnet their plumage display
 How sweet found their notes, as they perch on the spray,
 'Tis liberty gives all the joy to the song,
 And Nature and Fancy the notes still prolong.
 Like them I with freedom will ever engage,
 For I'll not be confin'd like a bird in a cage.

If love shou'd invite me to favour some youth,
 Whose eyes beam with transport, with honour and truth,
 To his wishes 'tis possible I may comply
 For my heart is too tender such worth to deny:
 Yet if I with love and with Hymen engage,
 I'll not be confin'd like a bird in a cage.

The V I L L A G E M A I D E N.

WHEN first I saw the village maiden,
 Like Cymon motion'd as I stood,
 'Twas Iphigenia's self appearing,
 So lovely, beautiful, and good.
 Her cheeks out blusht the rip'ning rose,
 Her smiles would banish mortals' wots,
 So sweet the village maiden.

Clarissa's eyes, all eyes attracting,
 Her breath Arabian spices feign;
 For her, like ore would Av'rice wander,
 Adventure all the prize to gain.
 I told my love with many fears,
 Which she return'd with speaking tears,
 Then sigh'd the village maiden.

She sigh'd because she had no riches,
 To make her lady-like and gay;
 Tho' virtue was her only portion,
 I dar'd to name the wedding-day.

The care of wealth let knaves endure,
I shall be rich and envied sure,
To gain the village maiden.

SHOUD be THINK of ANOTHER.

YOUNG Jockey calls me his delight,
And woes me night and morning,
I treat his passion still with flight,
His fondness always scorning.
Yet love him I must own I do,
Tho' I my passions smother,
And I shou'd die, I own, 'tis true,
Shou'd he think of another.

A blooming garland t'other day
He brought, I own 'twas p'casing;
Yet I the present threw away,
And wantonly was teasing.
Why shou'd I thus torment a swain,
And my own fondness smother,
When I shou'd die with grief and pain,
Shou'd he think of another.

Let prudence be each virgin's guide,
And reason be prevailing;
Let vanity be set aside,
Coquetry and railing.
If Jockey offers me his hand,
No more my love I'll smother,
But wedded I'll obey command,
And vow to love no other.

The Disconsolate SAILOR'S RETURN.

ONCE more I'm return'd to my own native shore,
Which I left when dejected to heartless and poor,
Each face look'd indignant and shy;
I fought for relief on the perilous main,
And Fortune she cheer'd my poor heart once again,
When I brav'd the caprice of the sky.
Tho' Death seem'd impatiently waiting around,
With sharp-pointed lightning and thunder profound,
Or roar'd in the turbulent wind;

When

When a calm has return'd, I've said to each mate,
 Tho' the heaven's have frown'd there's nothing I hate,
 So much as the frowns of mankind.

I had not forgot how my heart was oppress'd,
 And scorn'd e'en by those, whom I'd often carefs'd,

And parted my penny so free ;

But if ever dame Fortune should leave me again,

No more shall ingratitude give me a pain,

I'll seek for resource on the sea.

While STREPHON thus you TEASE ME.

WHILE Strephon thus you tease me, to say what won my heart,

It cannot sure be treason, if I the truth impart ;

It was your gen'rous nature, bold, soft, sincere, and gay,

It shone in ev'ry feature and stole my heart away.

'Twas not your smile tho' charming, 'twas not your eyes tho' bright,

'Twas not your bloom tho' warming, nor beauty dazzling light ;

No, it was your gen'rous nature, both soft, sincere, and
 gay,

It shone in ev'ry feature, and stole my heart away.

'Twas not your dress, tho' shining, nor shape that won
 my heart,

'Twas not your tongue combining, for that might please
 by art ;

No, it was your gen'rous nature, both soft, sincere and
 gay,

It shone in ev'ry feature, and stole my heart away.

My little FLUTTERING HEART.

PROPER flights will Fancy bring

While of Celadon I sing ;

Will she teach to tell his grace,

Will she draw his manly face ;

Will she lend th' enliv'ning aid

By which his form might be pourtray'd ;

To paint the swain whose charms can move

My little fluttering heart to love.

Will

Will she aid to tell his sense,
 Or to speak his eloquence;
 'Tis too great a female task,
 More than I'll of Fancy ask;
 And his repartee, and wit,
 All her sallies ne'er cou'd hit;
 Such is the swain whose pow'r can move
 My lttle flutt'ring heart to love.

I'd RATHER be EXCUS'D.

Returning from the fair one eve
 Across yon verdant plain,
 Young Harry said he'd see me home:
 A tight and comely swain.
 He beg'd I wou'd a fairing take,
 And wou'd not be refus'd;
 Then ask'd a kiss, I blush'd and cry'd,
 I'd rather be excus'd.

You're coy, said he, my pretty maid,
 I mean no harm, I swear,
 Long time I have in secret sigh'd,
 For you my charming fair;
 But if my tenderness offend,
 And if my love's refus'd;
 I'll leave you; what alone? you cry'd,
 I'd rather be excus'd.

He press'd my hand, and on we walk'd,
 He warmly urg'd his suit;
 But still to all he said I was
 Most obstinately mute.
 At length got home, he angry cry'd
 My fondness is abus'd,
 Then die a maid: indeed, says I,
 I'd rather be excus'd.

The UNION of BACCHUS and VENUS.

I'M a vot'ry of Bacchus his godship adore,
 And love at his shrine gay libations to pour,
 And Venus, blest Venus, my bosom inspires,
 For she lights in our souls the most sacred of fires:

Yet to ne'er I swear sole allegiance to hold,
My bottle and lass I by turns must enfold;

For the sweetest of unions that mortals can prove,
Is of Bacchus gay god, and the goddess of Love.

When, fill'd to the fair, the brisk bumper I hold,
Can the miser survey with such pleasure his gold;
The ambrosia of gods no such relish can boast,

If good port fills your glass, and fair Kitty's the toast:

And the charms of your girl more angelic will be,

If her sopher's encircled with wreaths from his tree;

For the sweetest of unions that mortals can prove,

Is of Bacchus gay god, and the goddess of Love.

All partial distinctions I hate from my soul,

O give me my fair one, and give me my bowl;

Bliss reflected from either will send to my heart

Ten thousand sweet joys, which they can't have apart;

Go try it, ye smiling and gay-looking throng,

And your hearts shall in union beat to my song;

'That the sweetest of unisons mortals can prove,

Is of Bacchus gay God, and the goddess of Love.

I ken be LOO's me WEE L.

BESIDE the burn the other day,

I tun'd my simple sang,

Young Jockey tripping came that way,

And play'd his pipe alang.

Upon the bank he took his seat,

And fain a kiss wou'd steal,

I rose and quickly did retreat,

Yet ken he loo's me weel.

Dear Peggy, then the loon he cry'd,

Do not my suit disdain;

Or treat wi' scornful airs and pride,

An honest-hearted swain.

I've ewes and lambs that graze the mead,

To truth I can appeal;

They shall be your's sweet lass indeed,

If you will loo me weel.

'The shepherd look'd and talk'd sa sweet,

Gude faith he won my heart;

For pit a pat I felt it beat,
 To frown I had na art.
 Mifs John, the happy knot has ty'd,
 Content is mine, I feel;
 There canna be a happier bride
 Because he loo's me weel.

I'll be the 'SQUIRE'S BRIDE.

NO sooner enter'd in my teens
 A gay unthinking lass;
 Above all former rural scenes,
 I priz'd my looking-glass.
 There vanity my face display'd,
 And list'd high my pride,
 I thought no doubt my form was made,
 To be some 'squire's bride.

Sometimes a self-opinion's right,
 And goes no little way,
 The 'squire view'd me with delight
 And crown'd me queen of May.
 I smil'd, I blush'd, and hung my head,
 When first he join'd my side,
 Yet to myself, I softly said
 I'll be the 'squire's bride.

From thence he woo'd me soon and late,
 At church and market too;
 But when he begg'd I'd be his mate,
 What cou'd a virgin do.
 'Twas folly sure to say him nay,
 He wou'd not be deny'd;
 Then soon he fixed the wedding day,
 And I'm the 'squire's bride.

I NEVER can BELIEVE it.

THAT Willy's won my tender heart,
 I never will deny,
 Alike he feels Love's pleasing smart,
 And heaves the tender sigh;
 The envious lasses jeering say,
 That heart he will deceive it,

He only courts me to betray;
I never can believe it.

The other day he brought a pair
Of tender cooing doves;
And smiling said; my charming fair
Like these shall be our loves.
What'e'er he brings wi' joy I take,
And kifs when I receive it,
His Nancy he cannot forsake,
I never will believe it.

Sweet smiles the happy morn of May
In all its vernal pride;
The village then shall all be gay
When I am Willy's bride;
His heart is mine, my heart his too,
With pleasure will I give it;
Shou'd others say he is untrue,
I never will believe it.

Indeed 'TIS MUCH TOO SOON.

AT gay sixteen my lovers came,
With flatt'ring tongues and hearts in flame,
As thick as flowers in June;
But of a little beauty vain,
I laugh'd and told each dying swain,
Indeed, 'twas much too soon.

Year after year in scorn went by,
Reject'ng ev'ry am'rous sigh,
I kept the same o'd tune;
Go shepherds, with disdain I cry'd,
'Tis time enough to be a bride,
Indeed, 'tis much too soon.

At twenty-five, full time to wed,
My lovers nearly all were fled,
I alter'd then my tune;
Shepherd said I, I've chang'd my mind
I've thought the matter o'er and find,
I cannot wed too soon.

INSTRUCTION.

Find the sum you want to know the Interest of in the first Column, and opposite to it, on the right Hand, you have the interest for the Day, Week, &c. in the respective columns, as marked at the top. If you cannot find the exact sum in the first Column, then take it at twice; as suppose 39—first take 30, and then 9—and add the Interest opposite each together, to make that of 39 l.
